Planners Approve New Theatre

Plans for a new theatre and store development at the corner of Dolores and Seventh were approved yesterday afternoon by the Carmel Planning Commission which also authorized issuance of a building permit for the project.

The permit for the theatre was requested by Arthur Strasburger and Jack Martin. The development will be located on the present Nielsen parking lot. Kip Stewart has designed the development which will have off-street parking for employees.

Also approved yesterday was a new store planned as an addition to present development on the Dudley Nix land at the corner of Mission and Seventh; also remodeling of the second floor of the Millard Building at Dolores and Sixth and the front of Womble's Pharmacy at Ocean and San Carlos.

Referred to the commission's land use committee for study and report on January 20 was a variance requested by Harold Nielsen for the store portion of the theatre development mentioned above. He wants to be allowed to have a street frontage of 88 feet instead of the 80 feet maximum allowed.

The request of Gladys H. Silva to establish two building sites after demolition of a nonconforming studio on one portion of the property to be divided at Carmelo and San Antonio was allowed.

W. E. Candy was permitted to reduce a front setback for a building at Scenic and Eighth. Lawrence Kinneard was allowed a building site with certain nonconformities on Lopez between Second and Fourth.

Referred to the commission's ad hoc committee, composed of Commissioners Fred Keeble, George Willox and Chairman Dorothy von Meier, was a city council report on the relocation of the police station and corporation yard on city-owned property on Junipero Avenue. This committee will report to the commission on how the relocation affects the Carmel General Plan next month.

TREE-LIGHTING CEREMONY

Tuesday night several hundred persons gathered at Junipero and Ocean for the revival of an old Carmel custom, a tree-lighting ceremony.

The brass quartet from the Carmel High School Band heralded the program which included a Christmas message from Mayor Herbert Blanks who was introduced by Pam Baldwin, president of the Carmel Youth Center, whose members proposed reviving the event. The red-robed Carmel High School Choir sang carols and John Farr, director of the choir, invited everyone to join the boys and girls in singing "Silent Night." The community singing was a signal for Walter P. Boyle, president of the Carmel Lions Club, to turn on the lights on the tall, living pine on Ocean Avenue which is the city's official Christmas tree.

Below is printed the Yuletide message which Mayor Blanks gave to the community at the tree-lighting ceremony.

MAYOR'S MESSAGE

"All over the world during this season, Christian men and women of good will are preparing for the one thousand nine hundred and sixty fourth birthday celebration of the Christ Child. From the land of the long arctic night to the steaming tropical jungles, people are preparing room for him in their hearts and homes. In many of these lands, the symbol of this preparation is the Evergreen Tree, emblem of life eternal, decked in gay profusion with beautiful ornaments and lights to show faith and joy in the promise of immortality. From its earliest inception in barbaric Germany in the dark ages the custom has spread, until today it is a Christmas symbol throughout the civilized world.

"Here in Carmel, where the Pine Tree is a symbol of our way of life, how appropriate it is that we should have a community Christmas Tree, and celebrate its lighting together. This custom was first observed in the old Carmel of the 1920s, but it somehow became lost in the succeeding years. It remained for our Carmel youth of the Youth Center to perceive that we had lost something precious, and to propose the renewal of the custom. We owe them a debt of gratitude for being sufficiently romantic and yet clear-sighted, to do this. May the youth of our community always be so inclined to see the good in old customs, and keep them, like our Christmas Tree, always bright and shining."

Editor's Column

Brightly lit Christmas trees will gleam in the windows of almost all the homes in Carmel next week. Most of these will be evergreens.

Three Christmases ago I was in a small Mexican city and in the whole town, about the size of Carmel, there was only one evergreen tree. Decorated with tinsel, blown glass baubles and lit with electric lights, it was a wonder to the people living in a land of palm forests.

However, the imported fir decorated with store-bought ornaments was not the only Christmas tree in town. There were many others. Some homes had a palm frond, others trees of glittering plastic, but most of the Christmas trees were bare branches, in a few instances sprayed with paint and glitter.

The garlands on the bare-branched trees were, for the most part, strings of a feathery dried seaweed or strands of brilliantly dyed string. Ornaments were of paper or tin.

But each tree was the pride of the household in which it stood, second only in importance to the lighted nacimiento in the same room.

These creches, some lit by a single candle, others by colored

Area Plan Is A Threat To Large Property Owners

The Monterey Peninsula Area Plan, as a policy statement, also as the basis for zoning and other regulations, could be a threat to the economic value of land owned by large property holders was one consensus arrived at during meetings of the planning and conservation committee of the Carmel Planning Commission and large landowners, according to the report of the committee presented to the commission yesterday afternoon.

The committee met with large landowners within the Carmel planning area, which extends three miles beyond the city limits, to enable these landowners to express their attitudes on the area plan and its effect on their property before the planning commission prepares recommendations on the adoption of the area plan to the city council.

Commissioners Fred Keeble, Hugh Smith and Anthony Vasconcellos state in their committee report that they recognized that the large landowners are in control of many properties most important to certain objectives of the area plan and that many of the potentials envisaged in the plan are only possible today because the large landowners have retained their properties in their present use and condition.

Therefore, they became aware that mutual understanding and cooperation between the landowners and public bodies provide the most effective means of implementing the policy of conservation and enhancement stated in the Carmel General Plan which overlaps the area plan in respect to large properties outside the city limits.

As a result of this awareness, personal invitations were extended to the major landowners to meet individually with the plan-

CHRISTMAS CAPERS

Rehearsals for the Christmas Capers, the Carmel Youth Center's gift to the community, which will be presented on Monday and Tuesday evenings in Sunset School auditorium, have according to director Pam Baldwin, reached "an all-out crazy pitch."

Specialty numbers—a dozen of them—are being rehearsed simultaneously in different corners of the Youth Center. Ten boys are practicing looking dainty as they go through the "Susie Snowflake" routine. Larry Little, who will be Santa Claus, is improving his "Ho Ho Ho!" Half a dozen girls from Carmel Junior High School are swinging — in true Hollywood style.

The brass quartet, composed of Jay Lang, Tim Head, Greg Sprung and David Ericson, really doesn't need practice but their music, they claim, relaxes rehearsal tension.

In all, 75 teen-agers in fantastic costumes will appear on Sunset's stage at 7:45 p.m. on Monday and Tuesday, to wish all Carmel a very Merry Christmas.

There will be no admission charge.

The Rhyming Philosopher

By Harry W. Fletcher

No. 86

Some years ago my cousin Paul for Christmas sent to me one redwood, and a dozen small assorted fleur-de-lis. My uncle spent his hard-earned wealth for seeds to plant around, while I presented to myself some tools to dig the ground.

The next year someone sent me sox that seemed to glow and glare. I also got a tie with clocks sewn in to match my hair. I buried them beside the junk I'd planted years before, while later presents, too, were sunk outside the kitchen door.

There's ornaments no one can use, and jugs of home-made wine; decanters full of low brand booze, and art of crude design. As years go by the compost pile grows big, while I devote too many precious minutes while I write each "thank you" note.

The fleur-de-lis and Saint John's Wart and cactus do quite well amid the junk those people bought, regardless of the smell. From shaving lotions tulips spring, and roses white and red; but, darn the luck, that sturdy king the redwood tree is dead.

TO SHOW AT DE YOUNG MUSEUM

Prints by four local men will be included in the outstanding exhibition of photographs by 129 leading photographers of the world which will open on January 8 in the M.H. de Young Memorial Museum in San Francisco.

Entitled "Photography in the Fine Arts IV," the show will have two prints by Ansel Adams, two by Wynn Bullock, one by Dick McGraw and three by Brett Weston.

The exhibition is the fourth in a series of circulating shows designed to demonstrate that photography's function is not restricted to the "mirror concept" and will remain at the museum through January 31.

Mr. Adams' pictures are entitled "East to the Great Plains from Cimarron, New Mexico" and "Fern Spring, Dusk, Yosemite Valley."

"The Stark Tree" and "Boy Fishing" are the titles of Mr. Bullock's prints.

Dick McGraw's photograph is named "Lake Elsinore, California."

Mr. Weston's pictures are "Pines and Fog," "Adobe Wall" and "Broken Glass." These prints were included in the show which he had this summer in his Carmel Highlands studio.

Four etchings by Colin Hunter and 15 paintings by Mary Young-Hunter and John Young-Hunter will be shown at the American Federation of Arts gallery on Lincoln Street until January 10.

Colin Hunter was the grandfather of Mrs. Edward Kuster and the great-grandfather of Mrs. Fred Rider (Marcia Kuster) of Carmel. Mr. and Mrs. Young-Hunter were Mrs. Kuster's parents and Mrs. Rider's grandparents.

The pictures have been loaned for the exhibition by Mrs. Kuster and Mrs. Rider. They include three portraits of Mrs. Kuster as a young girl and one of her daughter as a child.

The house in which Mr. and Mrs. John Harrison now live formerly was Mary Young-Hunter's Carmel studio.

During the week of January 13-17 the ballroom of the U.S. Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey will be transformed into an art gallery. The occasion is the Second Annual Religious Art Show sponsored by the Catholic Chapel Guild.

The purpose of this show is to further stimulate interest in the better traditional and contemporary religious art and to show what is available to the people through the local galleries and artists.

This year there will be a competitive phase for both professional and amateur artists. The competition will cover all media and embrace all faiths. However, only residents of Monterey County are eligible to enter. In the professional category, $300 will be awarded to the "Best of Show" and an additional $300 will be divided for first and second place prizes in the divisions of arts and crafts. Suitable awards will be similarly given in the amateur classes.

Both the professional and amateur classes will be judged for selection. The judges will be: Joseph Danysh, Miss Irene Alexander and Harry Ford of California College of Arts and Crafts in Oakland.

The public is invited to visit the show. It will be open on the evenings of January 13-15 and all day January 16 and 17.

Strengthen Controls On Building In Del Monte Forest

A. G. Michaud, president of Del Monte Properties Company, has announced that beginning January 1, 1965, the policy of architectural control for buildings inside Del Monte Forest will be strengthened and the process for approval of plans will be clearly defined.

As of that date all plans for buildings will be submitted to an architectural control board composed of Mr. Michaud as chairman, Hugh H. Bein, vice president of Del Monte Properties Company in charge of engineering, and two members of his staff, Matt W. Corrigan and E. A. Shattuck, together with Otis Kadani, chief forester.

This group will take into consideration the type of building planned for a particular lot and area and how it will fit in with neighboring houses in that area. If necessary, constructive recommendations will be made to the builder as to how his plans may be made more compatible to the area involved. The conservation of trees on the property will also be carefully studied.

BANK BUILDING FOR NEW MONTEREY

William A. Burkett, president of Security National Bank of Monterey County, has announced the purchase by the bank of the property at the southeast corner of Hoffman and Lighthouse avenues in New Monterey. He said that remodeling of the present premises will start immediately in order to open the branch on April 15.

Mr. Burkett stated that the bank will utilize the entire present building now occupied by Wardrobe Cleaners and Mac's Poultry Market and will redesign the structure with early American colonial architecture in keeping with the bank's other offices in Pacific Grove, Carmel, Marina and Seaside.

A Carmel Tradition Ends Tonight At Sunset School

BY CAROLYN ELSTOB

All schools in the Carmel Unified School system close tomorrow for the Christmas holidays and will re-open on January 4. This week students—kindergarteners to high school seniors—have rollicked through the week in high spirits. There have been class parties and performances, sparkling Christmas trees and carollers, and grown-ups as well as youngsters were in the midst of the merriest season of the year.

But for many Carmelites, as the doors open tonight for Sunset School's own presentation of The Snow Queen, there will be a touch of sadness and many will remember their children and their children's children as, lights in hand, they walked, carolling, down the aisles of Sunset auditorium.

Carmel Pine Cone files go back to Christmas of 1915. And recorded in the issue of December 22 of 49 years ago, is the story of Sunset School's Christmas play.

William L. Overstreet was publisher-editor of The Pine Cone then and in his commentary on Sunset's presentation, he thanks "parents of the students and Messers. Devendorf, Leidig, Gillett and Dingle for their great assistance."

Each year since then there has been a Christmas play at Sunset—and this year's will be the last. A precious Carmel tradition will pass into memory.

Tonight's production of The Snow Queen is a musical version of Hans Christian Andersen's legendary tale. The revision was made by Miss Jo Brazell's English class with the musical score and coordination by Miss Brazell and Miss Nancy Loyd, director of dramatics. Miss Sharon Jones directed the instrumentalists. The school choir as well as the band will participate.

Open to the public, with the performance scheduled for 7:30 p.m., the presentation is the Christmas gift of the students, teachers and assisting parents to all Carmel.

OTHER SCHOOLS

Young students of the Woods School held a party for parents yesterday morning with carols and Christmas decorations the main features of their presentation, "Symbols of Christmas."

Small boys and girls of River School sang loudly and lustily this morning about Santa Claus and all the wonders of the season. There will be individual class parties tomorrow.

The festival music program presented at Carmel Junior High School on Tuesday evening attracted a capacity audience. Under the direction of Joseph W. Larsen, the band and the instrumental ensemble presented traditional classic and contemporary compositions with Greg Stegeman and Bill Armstrong as soloists.

William F. Purdy's beginners, intermediate and advanced choral groups won resounding applause as they sang a widely diversified selection of Christmas favorites including Bach's "Laud We the Name" and the early English carol "I Wonder As I Wander."

The gay and exciting rhythm of "Little Drummer Boy" sung by the combined choruses, accompanied by the instrumental ensemble, climaxed the program.

PRIVATE SCHOOLS

The three to five-year-old students at the Carmel Pre-School are tremendously busy making Christmas presents for their parents, singing carols, and whispering about Santa Claus. As the student body is divided into two groups, there will be two Christmas parties, for students only, one on Monday and one on Tuesday. Classes will resume January 4.

Parents and friends of the students at Santa Catalina School for Girls are invited to attend the Christmas concert to be given by the school's choral group and the a cappella choir tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock, in the St. Louis Bertrand Hall, under the direction of Miss Margaret Farlinger.

Holiday vacations start tomorrow and end January 3 when boarders will return. Classes will be resumed January 4.

At All Saints' Episcopal Church School, where the age span of the students is from five to 11 years, emphasis has been placed upon the season of Advent, preparation for the birth of Christ. The children have been making their Advent wreaths and tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock they will participate in a celebration of the Holy Communion at All Saints' Church, singing Advent and Christmas hymns and reading the lessons. Vacation for the holidays starts tomorrow and ends January 4.

The students at Robert Louis Stevenson School for Boys decorated their Christmas tree on Monday evening. Hilarity ran high as each boy tried to reach the highest branch with his favorite bauble.

This evening, on the eve of departure for home for the holidays, there will be a formal program given for parents. The organ prelude will be played by director of music, Robert Peterson. Headmaster Robert Ricklefs will give the Christmas message. The story of the birth of Jesus according to St. Luke will be read by student lay readers, Peter Fluor of Pasadena and Peter Rand of Carmel. Mrs. Robert Canada will be the vocal soloist of the evening. Carols by the student body and refreshments will climax the party. The boys will return to school January 4.

Christmas Party

Tots to ten-year-olds will be the guests at a Christmas party on Sunday at the Beach Club for members' children. Festivities will begin at 4 p.m.

Scholarship Festival At MPC On Saturday

A colorful international festival, annual scholarship benefit event of the International Relations Club at Monterey Peninsula College, will be staged Saturday in the MPC Music Hall.

The evening has been planned to feature the songs, dances and music of the several countries represented by international students at the college. To tie them all together, English instructor John Waterhouse, IRC advisor, has created a character—a Texas inventor who likes to get away from it all — and a marvelous machine which transports people in time and space.

Waterhouse has written a ballad to tell the story. This was arranged and will be sung by student Nick Hovick and mimed by Sam Bhukkanasut and Ginger Saylor between sequences.

Tickets—$1.50 for the general public, $1 for students—may be purchased at the music hall door. All proceeds will go toward a scholarship fund for IRC members.

FREE BALLET FOR CHILDREN

The Junior League of the Monterey Peninsula will present a free Christmas gift to the children of Monterey County this weekend. The California Imperial Ballet, a professional group from San Francisco composed of 35 dancers ranging in age from 8 to 20 years directed by Jean Hart, will present two ballets—"Les Sylphides" and "La Ronde." Two performances will be given Sunday at the Pacific Grove Junior High School auditorium at 1:30 and 4 p.m.

The choreography of this lovely ballet was executed by Mrs. A. Brooks Firestone, a Junior League member on the Monterey Peninsula who was a member of the Royal Ballet of England.

Since 1954 the Junior League through its Children's Theater has presented each year some form of a live production to the young people without an admission fee.

The California Imperial ballet performances by the talented group this year will include elaborate settings with a carousel on the stage.

New Daughter

Heather Marion, the third daughter for Mr. and Mrs. Robert Douglas, arrived on December 5. Her birth weight was seven pounds 11 and a half ounces, and she flaunted a blonde topknot. Heather's paternal grandmother is Mrs. Marion Douglas of Carmel Highlands. Her maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Scheffer of Carmel. The new arrival's sisters, Laura, aged four, and Allison, who is two and a half, have the idea that Santa Claus arrived ahead of time with this special present for them.

Heather's father teaches fifth grade at Sunset School. The Douglas family, including Heather, will spend Christmas day with the Eugene Scheffers.

Former Ambassador Here

Seen lunching at Carmel's "La Marmite" on Saturday was Philip D. Sprouse, former U.S. Ambassador to Cambodia and an old friend of the Arthur Porters who were entertaining him there.

Mr. Sprouse was, at one time, first secretary at the U.S. Embassy in Brussels, so there was an amusing and rapid-fire conversation in French with the restaurant's proprietors, who are Belgian.

So impressed was Mr. Sprouse with "La Marmite" that he returned with a friend for dinner, the same evening.

Jesus' life as a manifestation of divine power will be studied at Christian Science services this Sunday. Subject: "Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" Bible readings will include accounts of the virgin birth, calming the storm, the raising of Lazarus, and Jesus' words: "I am the light of the world: he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life" (John 8:12).

Selections from the Christian Science textbook about the birth of Jesus will include these lines: "The incarnation of Truth, that amplification of wonder and glory which angels could only whisper and which God illustrated by light and harmony, is consonant with ever-present Love" (Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy, p. 501).

Take a holiday DURING the pre-holiday season. A relaxing drive down the Coast is just what the doctor ordered, and of course this prescription includes a stop at the Phoenix, right next door to Nepenthe. First thing you know you'll have most of your Christmas shopping done if you're not careful. There's a gift of some kind for ANYbody, no matter how "difficult", whether it's jewelry, an antique, a handmade gewgaw, or . . . oh, all sorts of things from all over the world. And don't miss seeing those goofy beautiful hats that Lolly herself crochets. Have you ever done your Christmas (or any other) shopping in a place that has a commanding view of the Pacific Ocean? Even in poor weather it's fun, but if you come on a nice day you'll have trouble tearing yourself away.

Christmas In New Home

Mr. and Mrs. Don Borden and their two daughters expect to be in their new home by Christmas. For some weeks they have been busy painting the house in the Eighty Acres which they recently purchased. This house originally was the Hermann Spoehr home, built during the time that Dr. Spoehr was head of the Carnegie Coastal Laboratory in Carmel. Some years after he moved to Palo Alto and the Carnegie laboratory at Stanford University, Dr. Spoehr sold the house in Carmel to the late Mr. and Mrs. Walter Shuster.

Editor's Column . . .

For years families had collected tiny clay animals and figurines, made cut-outs from magazines and postcards, and, more recently acquired plastic images for their nacimientos. These were spread, sometimes on several levels, on carpets of the dried weed also used for garlands on the tree and about the house.

Passersby in the warm tropical night who stopped to admire the nacimientos were invited to come inside to have a better look, and if a party were in progress, to stay and take part in the festivities. And there was music, but not the Christmas tunes we know.

On Christmas Eve, Indians in procession wound down from the mountains along the steep paths in the canyon of the river. They were coming into town to go to church and they bid a stranger "good night" as they passed.

Next day as I walked through the town poinsettias, the Christmas Eve flower, bloomed above adobe walls or in pots and cans in tiny patios. A breeze nattered the palm fronds beside the sun-drenched beach and in the evening we ate our Christmas turkey, cooked in a spicy sauce, in an outdoors dining room where gay pinatas hung beside a bunch of bananas from a nearby hillside.

The dinner had been cooked by a family who had had their big celebration the night before, after midnight mass. They had had little sleep, for the meal took long to prepare. The younger members danced and sang and played guitars for our enjoyment while their parents smiled at the gaiety. They didn't mind at all that we lingered long at our feast. They were happy in their hearts and wanted us to be happy, too.

It was a strange Christmas for one who had only known this season in England, Newfoundland, Canada and California. But never in any of these lands had I felt the simple joy of people at Christmastime more strongly.

So, every evening next week, as I see the brightly lit Christmas trees gleaming in the windows of Carmel, I will think of the town with only one evergreen where friendliness came from the hearts of young and old . . . persons with almost no possessions, but with a priceless gift to give to stranger.

Golden Bough, Circle Theatres To Be Sold

At a meeting on Monday night shareholders in the Carmel Playhouse Corporation, by an overwhelming majority vote, decided to sell the Golden Bough and Circle theatres to United California Theatres, Inc. for $154,000.

The two theatres, situated between Monte Verde and Casanova streets south of Eighth Avenue, were built with proceeds of stock sold in 1949 at $25 per share. These shares will be redeemed for $26, the board of directors agreed on Monday.

United Theatres has been leasing the Golden Bough Theatre for cinema presentation. Terms of the sale prohibit the new owners from using the name Golden Bough.

The Circle Theatre will be leased from the buyer for five years with an option to extend the lease for an additional five years. Dramatic productions are presented in this small-open stage facility.

Area Plan Is A Threat to Large Property Owners

These meetings led to the consensus presented at the opening of this article.

In addition the meetings brought forth other generalizations. These were:

(1) Under county regulations, certain landowners have been able to develop their land without regard to the purposes stated in the area plan and, if such development continues, extremely restrictive regulations affecting the remaining landowners who have preserved their property might be instituted.

(2) Rising taxes and operating costs are a heavy burden to owners of agricultural land and may soon make it economically impossible for them to retain their land in such use.

(3) Green belt and park designations in the area plan tend to fall largely on the holdings of certain individuals, also location of suburban development and density designation in the area plan is inequitably distributed, therefore certain landowners feel impelled to consider immediate action to safeguard their right to develop and realize on the value of their land.

(4) Intensive development and subdivision of some properties is forcing up land values and consequently tax assessments without regard to the use of adjacent properties—and state law provides no tax reductions or adjustments for a property owner who is willing to maintain his land in a use which benefits public interests.

(5) Some form of incentive zoning applied to large land holdings would reduce inequities implicit in the area plan.

(6) The overall density for the Carmel and Carmel Valley portion of the area plan should take into consideration natural homesites determined by gradient, accessibility and the effect of the density on visual values, also that this density should be applied so as to achieve the purposes and effect of a greenbelt.

(7) Certain landowners think recreation-type parks for the general public are undesirable and could have an adverse effect on the residential character of this area; but all the landowners indicate a strong interest and desire to participate in conservation-type developments and retention of greenbelt where possible.

(8) Individual landowners express strong desires to preserve prominent features of their properties in park or greenbelt condition if a means is provided to permit development of their land in other areas so as to protect their economic interest. All the landowners recognize the value to themselves, as well as to the public, of preserving salient and striking features of this entire area.

One landowner made specific recommendations. These were that some type of regulation be instituted immediately to maintain the status quo until equitable zoning regulations are developed; that public bodies explore all avenues to seek state legislation to permit assessments to be adjusted for land kept as greenbelt; that limited or restricted type of recreation areas or parks be considered rather than ones for the general public.

The Carmel Planning Commission will further consider items in the above report in January. State Senator Fred Farr will be invited to meet with the commission at this time, also [redacted] Hall, area plan consultant, and a representative of the Monterey County Planning Commission.

Following the meeting, the commission will frame its recommendations on the adoption of the area plan for the city council to act upon.

Planners To Protest New Development Along Highway One

Carmel planning commissioners, yesterday afternoon, decided that in any future subdivision of undivided properties under one-acre size within the city, lot sizes should be a minimum of 6,000 square feet instead of the regulation 4,000 square feet in the rest of Carmel.

This requirement was approved for inclusion in the subdivision ordinance being prepared by City Attorney John Morse and the city's planning director, Floyd Adams.

Mr. Adams was asked by the commission to protest to the county about proposed development fronting on Highway One across from Mission Fields. Commissioners' objections to the Carmel Properties Company proposed use of this land were (1) a disproportionate ratio of commercial areas to other types of development; (2) lack of open space; (3) no conformance with the area plan parkway designations for land fronting on Highway One.

This development was not submitted by the county to the Carmel Planning Commission for review before it was acted upon by the county planning commission as is customary.

"This was a serious and blatant omission," Commissioner Hugh Smith declared.

Children's Party

Carmel American Legion, Post 512, will hold its annual Children's Christmas Party on Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the Carmel Legion Hall.

For the children and grandchildren (under 12 years of age) of members, the program for the evening will be headed by Santa Claus who will dispense gifts, cookies and ice cream.

Co-chairmen of the party committee, Robert Monaco and Dick Zimmerman, will be assisted by Commander and Mrs. Alderson, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Shea, R. E. Smith, Frank Girard, Al Chapin, Dennis Narvaez, James Kelsey and Paul T. Artellan.

Teachers Opposed To Leadership Program

Rules governing the employment of teachers in the Carmel Unified School District were approved last night with minor changes by the board of education despite a strong objection from the teachers' personnel policies committee on the section covering development of a leadership credit program.

Kenneth Wiese spoke for the teachers' committee which wished the elimination of the entire section stating that leadership credits might be substituted for college or university credits earned by teachers.

The committee also objected to any establishment of a leadership program because "We have not yet seen, objectively, a need for the Leadership Credit Program," their report stated.

In addition, the teachers' report said there had been little or no real discussion on the program's merit, positive or negative, therefore the committee could not agree to it, either in principle or philosophy, until it was understood what was being considered or accepted.

Despite these statements the section on the leadership program was adopted by the board.

"This plan has potential merit," Board Chairman Dr. Robert Newton stated.

The board last night also awarded a bid for dressing room lockers at Carmel High School to Republic Steel Corporation, low bidder at $10,695.

Authorization was given to advertise for bids for furniture and equipment for the large group teaching facility under construction at the high school; also for bids for construction of the eight-room intermediate school addition on the junior high school site. These latter bids will be opened on January 27 in the hope that construction can begin on February 1 and be completed by August 1.

Trustee Clayton Neill Jr., suggested that the junior high, when converted to an intermediate school next September, should be named Hatton School. No action was taken on this proposal.

Added to the citizens' advisory committee to the board in several categories were the names of Edgar Bissantz, art and music; Mrs. Malcolm Jones, English; Mrs. Richard Kern and Roy Meadows, home and industrial arts; Dr. Robert Wirtz, mathematics; Mrs. Gardner Schetter and Sidney Williams, reading; Dr. William Shanner, science; and Dr. Edgar Wesley, social studies.

New Commission Members Named

The city council, at its December 9 meeting, approved extension of the Forestry Commission for a year, also the appointment of Dr. Ferdinand Haasis and Wallace Doolittle to this commission for one-year terms and the reappointment for two-year terms of Robert Strum, Richard Hittinger and Genie Ricketts.

Mayor Herbert Blanks also announced the appointment of Mr. Doolittle to the Sunset Committee.

Other matters acted on by the council were to set a public hearing for January 6 at 8 p.m. on continuing an interim ordinance demanding off-street parking be provided for new business district developments; refuse a $41,000 slip and fall claim against the city made by Glenn A. Mulhern; deny a 10 or 20 minute limited parking zone in front of the entrance to the Carmel branch of the Security National Bank in Pine Inn; allow a 10 minute loading zone for the Little Gem Laundromatic on Junipero Street because recent widening of the street had eliminated former parking.

A normal step increase in pay was granted to Floyd Adams, the city's director of planning.

The probationary employment of Morris D. Singletary as a policeman was also approved. Formerly employed by a local laundry, the new policeman has been a volunteer member of the Carmel fire department for one year. He was born in Texas in 1942 and came to California in 1947. He is a graduate of the Pacific Grove school system and, since 1960, has attended evening division classes at Monterey Peninsula College. He was married last month.

MPC Board Adds Courses, Considers Opera Workshop

Twenty new courses — most of them of a vocational character— were approved by the Monterey Peninsula College board of trustees at its December meeting last week.

The approved courses include intermediate ornamental horticulture, designed to follow a beginning course in landscape gardening which was offered for the first time during the current semester; 13 real estate courses which comprise a proposed certificate program in the field; and six new chemistry courses, including three "special study" courses for students who are capable of doing independent research.

In other action, the trustees accepted a gift of photography equipment valued in excess of $400 from Mrs. Harry Lusignan.

Fred Keeble of the architectural firm of Keeble and Rhoda was on hand to give a progress report on the college master plan.

The board also explored with Dr. Harvey Marshall, MPC music department chairman, and Dr. James Rhodes, dean of instruction, a proposal to stage an opera workshop on campus in August, 1965.

Book Review . . .

BY C. EDWARD GRAVES

GENTLE WILDERNESS: THE SIERRA NEVADA

This is the ninth book in what the Sierra Club calls its Exhibit Format Series; the fifth in color. They are handsomely printed books, 10¼ x 13½ inches in size. The series has been remarkably successful and it demonstrates the interest of the public in beautiful scenery combined with a superb job of book making.

The author of this book, Richard Kauffman, is a Sierra Club member of 25 years standing. He is also a member of the Canadian Alpine Club and has climbed extensively in the Canadian Rockies, Alaska and the Alps. It so happens that he is president of one of the nation's major printing concerns, which has given him an unusual opportunity to combine his knowledge of the mountains, his skill as a photographer, and his experience in making color prints by an original process that gives remarkably good color control.

The text is from one of my favorite books of John Muir, "My Summer in the Sierra." This was a journal that he kept one summer when he accompanied a sheepherder, at the request of the owner of the sheep, in a series of camps that gave him free time to wander through the mountains, making observations of natural history as he went. It is full of the fresh enthusiasm that he felt in the glow of his first acquaintance with the Sierra Nevada.

The photographs were not made with any thought of illustrating Muir's books but so closely is Mr. Kauffman's appreciation of wilderness values allied to that of Muir that the result is a naturally harmonious combination of text and color prints. The reader has the pleasure not only of studying some of the best mountain photography available in book form but also of coming closer to an understanding of the individuality of California's great mountaineer naturalist.

David Brower, executive director of the Sierra Club, who designed the book, explains its purpose in a long foreward. Perhaps one paragraph sums it up very well.

He writes: "Even as in Muir's time, the Sierra Club's purpose is still to gather together people from all over who know how important it is that there should always be some land wild and free. They are needed to counter the rationalizations of the highway builders, and dam and logging-road builders, who would slice through and dismember the wilderness. The purpose of the book is to remind everyone (to paraphrase Newton Drury) that neither California nor the rest of America is rich enough to lose any more of the Gentle Wilderness or poor enough to need to.

In answer to critics who say that the Sierra Nevada is not a "gentle" wilderness, Brower points out that "no other of the world's great ranges that Mr. Kauffman knows, or that I know, or that so far as we know Muir knew, is as gentle as the Sierra." He admits that in storms or in rough climbing it may not be found to be gentle but "still there is always enough gentleness in the Sierra, or soon will be, when the storm clears or the rough climb ends."

THE GENTLE WILDERNESS: THE SIERRA NEVADA.

Photographed by Richard Kauffman; Text from John Muir, Sierra Club, 1964. 166 p. (76 colored prints). $20 until Dec. 31; after that, $25.

The Sur Coast

By ELIZABETH FULLER JONES

FILMING AT PFEIFFER BEACH

With almost flawless weather in their favor, personnel of the Trylon Productions of Hollywood were in Big Sur for four days recently filming a commercial picture for a New York advertising agency and their client, Eastman Kodak. Providing meals for the group of 25 persons posed a problem that was quickly solved when arrangements were made with Big Sur Inn.

Helmuth Deetjen, owner of the inn, and his staff provided "very early morning breakfast," box lunches and dinners at the appointed hours. Preparing food for large numbers was just one more challenge accepted and met during the long years of operating the inn.

"I always wanted to run an inn. Even as a little boy in Bergen, Norway, I dreamed of one day having one," says Mr. Deetjen.

However, it wasn't always with such ease that he was able to provide for so many at mealtime as was the case last week.

"When I was in New York years ago, I once needed a job. I was hired as an assistant cook to prepare meals for 52 choir boys. I knew nothing about cooking, but figured the head cook would just tell me what to do, like peeling potatoes, and I would do it. But the head cook left the day I arrived. When the matron at the school gave me the menu for the first dinner, it said 'roast leg of lamb, baked potatoes, et cetera.' I never said a word, but went out onto the street and looked up and down and watched the people as they passed. When a woman approached (one with a pleasant face), I hesitatingly stopped her and told her my predicament. She came to my rescue and the boys had dinner on time. The matron of the school never knew what happened and I worked there a year," Mr. Deetjen reports.

NEW CHP OFFICER

Donald D. Thomas has just been assigned as California Highway Patrol officer for the Sur Coast, which extends from Rocky Point south to Pacific Valley. Officer Thomas is taking over the beat recently vacated by Noel M. Clarabut who has been transferred to Point Arena in Mendocino County. In coming to his new post, Officer Thomas is quick to state that he is "not replacing Officer Clarabut," for he knows that his predecessor holds a very unique place in the hearts of the residents of the coastal area. Officer Clarabut consistently went "beyond the call of duty" to be of service to the people of the community during the five years he and his family were stationed here.

Officer and Mrs. Thomas and their two children, Mark and Wendy, came to Big Sur from Newhall, a small town north of the San Fernando Valley in Southern California. It is something of a "home coming" for them, for it was 12 years ago that Donald Thomas and Mrs. Thomas (the former Sandee Anderson) met in Big Sur. That summer Thomas was working at the store at Pfeiffer State Park and Miss Anderson was "helping out" at Post's Rancho Sierra Mar. The Thomases tell us that they are delighted to be living in Big Sur—"it seems like a dream come true."

Last week end, visiting with the Donald Thomas family, was Mrs. Minnie Sandercock of Sacramento, grandmother of Mrs. Thomas. In 1922, Mrs. Sandercock was a teacher at the Big Sur school.

POES LEAVE

Neighbors and friends in the Garrapata Redwoods and Palo Colorado Canyon area, said "goodbye" to Mr. and Mrs. Melvon Poe when they left the coastal area this month to return to their former home in Southern California. Seven years ago the Poes purchased property in a wooded area three miles up the canyon from Highway One. In the following few years they constructed a house and frequently visited here. Two years ago Mr. and Mrs. Poe moved to their new home and immediately began to take part in communitiy activities, including the "Southcoasters," a square dance group that meets every Wednesday at the Big Sur Grange Hall. Mr. Poe, who has had many years of experience in the blueprinting business, became associated with a Carmel and Monterey firm. Literally up until the time they were getting into their automobile for their return to their other home in South Gate, Mrs. Poe (Pauline) was working on a community project, that of the Christmas Fair held last Saturday at the Palo Colorado School.

Trees On Junipero

By Christmastime 100 new trees will beautify Junipero Street above Ocean Avenue if planting plans drawn up by City Forester Hugh Smith in cooperation with Street Commissioner Stephen Grant and Superintendent of Public Works William Askew are completed.

Last week the city council approved the plans which included planting 75 Monterey pines and 25 other species of trees (chosen to add interest) in the center dividing strip of the recently widened and repaved thoroughfare also at the ends of parking spaces in the blocks on Junipero between Ocean and Fourth. Pines, too, will be planted as screening for the corporation yard fence above Fifth.

The council also acknowledged with thanks the sum of $280 donated by the Carmel Kiwanis Club to buy ten large trees and a gift of planting materials from the Peninsula Garden Club for the Junipero beautification project.

Mayor Herbert Blanks lauded the two organizations for their interest and assistance.

"I hope," he said, "this signifies a revival of interest in the appearance of the town."

The species of trees which are not native to Carmel that will be planted on Junipero are Douglas fir, deodar, Sierra redwood, Bishop pine, liquid amber, Catalina cherry, olive, Atlantic cedar, eucalyptus cimera and incense cedar. All the trees were to be placed irregularly where possible. The large planters at intersections will be planted with three species of juniper, none of them higher than four feet.

Thurber Fantasy At First Theatre To Be Benefit For Gateway Center

To benefit the Gateway Center for Retarded Children, the First Theatre of Monterey will present James Thurber's "Many Moons," a fantasy for children and the young in heart, on four consecutive evenings, starting Sunday evening at 8 p.m.

Adapted for the stage by Charlotte Chorpenning, the three-act play is directed by Nick Le Feuvre Jr. with a cast of Monterey Peninsula favorites in the picturesque roles.

Miss Terry Leach, in the role of the yearning princess who just must get her wish or expire, is a great worry to her father, the king, played by Sid Frohman. His three befuddled wisemen will be enacted by Harry W. Fletcher as the Lord High Chamberlain; Russ Eddy as the Royal Wizard; and Jim Dooley as the Royal Mathematician. Two scheming wives of courtiers will be played by Muriel Hamilton and Laverne Seeman.

Mr. Le Feuvre will appear as the Court Jester, wisest man in the palace. Madeleine Hicks, the well loved character actress of the First Theatre's Troupers of the Gold Coast, will be seen as the Royal Nurse and Ricky Hopelain as the Goldsmith's son.

Costumes will be designed by Rhoda Johnson. With special music, lighting and scenery in the hands of the First Theatre's long experienced staff, the Christmas offering promises unique holiday entertainment.

Tickets may be purchased at the First Theatre of Monterey box office. Children under 12 years of age, when accompanied by adults, will be admitted free of charge. Teen-agers (to 16 years of age) half price. Adults, $1.00. For telephone information, call 375-4916 or 375-8650.

The production of "Many Moons" is a Christmas gift to the Gateway Center from the First Theatre management, staff and players.
